Thirsk Easter walking tour

Thirsk through the ages

- How Thirsk marketplace might have looked in 1145.
- The brutal marketplace barber surgeons who could cut your hair for Easter and extract a tooth at the same time.
- Why did people crawl on their hands and knees at Easter?
- The shocking "hocking" practice that took place at Easter in the alleys of Thirsk that were eventually banned in some places.

All this and more will be answered in this fascinating Easter journey through the history of Thirsk.

- See where The Hermit of Thirsk lived.

- Hear about the surprising Thirsk link to Lord Horatio Nelson's amputation.
 - See where the strange ancient 7ft skeleton was found.
 - View the remains of the canal that never was and what lies beneath.
- These tours last 1.5 hrs and will take place on Sat 4 Apr. Meet at Thirsk tourist information centre in the Market Place (in front of the door) at 11am, and please wear sensible shoes.
No fixed price but donations gratefully received. Contact:

Zillah Bell Gallery, Thirsk

Until Sat 4 Apr Thirsk's Zillah Bell Gallery is displaying the full suite of 52 prints, 'Against Nature', by the internationally acclaimed artist, William Tillyer, who commented: "I'm delighted the complete suite of works can be seen again in its entirety for the first time since 2018."

The artworks are all inspired by Joris-Karl Huysmans' experimental novel, 'A Rebours', and use a wide range of different intaglio printmaking techniques. Tillyer, who first began the project in 1974, continued to work on it during the next 43 years. William Tillyer was born and still works in North Yorkshire. He studied at Middlesbrough College of Art and at the Slade. He has exhibited internationally and his work is held in the collections of The Museum of Modern Art, New York; the Brooklyn Museum; the Tate Gallery, the V&A and the Arts Council.
